Kristina Ranae Persall

has successfully completed the online Specialization

Market Research

In this Specialization, learners gained the skills to conduct market research within their organization. The Specialization covered the necessary skills of initiating and responding to a research project request, of identifying a target audience, and conducting basic research through multiple research modes. Learners also analyze the research data, manage suppliers performing specialized research, and deliver recommendations and insights of the findings to key stakeholders. This Specialization builds on the skills from conception of a market research project through data collection and analysis to presentation to demonstrate learned skills.
